Dear Mr. Hill,

We are appreciative of your interest in our products. If you visit our website, you'll see many favorable product reviews. I've attached our company catalogue showing our entire line of products.

We designed the Top Everest line to be most elegant luggage you can find anywhere in the world. Some customers want the luggage to be as neatly-fitted and lightweight as possible, so we asked our designers to do just that. You cannot find a more neatly-fitted and lightweight luggage than ours.

In addition, most of our customers want the luggage to be the toughest and most long-lasting, so we chose the toughest and most long-lasting materials for the Top Everest line and subjected our first products to the most severe tests. We had them run over by steamrollers(压路机). We also had trucks run over them. Only a few products survived these tests. We recovered only those that survived the tests, finalized their design, and put them into production. You can count on our products. If you want to purchase our products in a large quantity, we will give you a 10% discount. I am sure your store will make more profits than ever. On April 6 I need to go on a business trip in Texas. I can drop by your store to meet with you and discuss our products in detail.

If we can be of further service, or if you need to get more information, please call us at 356-589-6987 at any time. We value your business and want to help any way we can.

Envelope Budget

From McDonald's to Sonic, fast food had a bad effect on my waistline and my budget. It was nothing to run to a drive-through to pick up a cold drink or a quick bite to eat. It was so easy to use my card for a small purchase. For me, I got a lot of satisfaction from fast food.

One day I sat down and calculated that I was spending a surprising $40 a week on fast food. This was a lot of iced coffee and hamburgers! Instead of reducing my guilty pleasures, I decided to give myself a strong budget to reduce my consumption. Every Monday I placed an envelope with $20 in my purse. That was my fast food budget for the entire week. If there was anything left over at the end of the week, it was mine to save or spend. If I spent all of the money during the week, there were no more fast food stops that week.

The budget made me more mindful of my purchases. Instead of purchasing a large drink from Sonic. I would purchase a small. It was still satisfying but not nearly as pricey. Instead of eating a whole meal, I would pick the part that I actually wanted. Many days, the thought of hanging onto the money for a special purpose meant more to me than the instant satisfaction of fast food. I never really felt unhappy because it was a conscious choice to spend or save with each purchase.

Envelope budget kept me honest. I had a clear idea how much money was spent each week on fast food purchases. I started to bring my lunches more often to save more money for the week. It was a fun challenge to see how much I could save every week.

Changing the way I spent on fast food not only helped my budget, but improved my weight. In the first month I was able to get rid of 5 pounds by simply changing the way I approached spending on fast food. Now I am more likely to bring my lunch than to buy it. I am not upset, but empowered to make positive choices to improve my life.

59. According to Paragraph 1, the author _____.

- A. had no time to cook for herself

B. was fond of fast food very much

C. lived with a small amount of money

D. got some benefits from using her card

60. The author set her envelope budget to _____.

A. buy fast food at a good bargain

B. save money to buy more fast food

C. make fast food spending under control

D. get rid of the habit of eating fast food

61. We can infer from the last paragraph that _____.

A. envelope budget is good for health

B. the budget means a pressure on life

C. it is unusual to make some changes

D. it is hard to enjoy a healthy lifestyle

62. What is the passage mainly about?

A. Why the author became addicted to fast food.

B. Why the author took envelope budget seriously.

C. How fast food controlled the author's behavior.

D. How envelope budget changed the author's life.

The British love word-play and they're enthusiastic about defending the use of their language. In recent years, books about the grammar, pronunciation and punctuation(标点) of English have been written by the dozen, and sold extremely well, reflecting people's love of the English language. People want to defend the "correct" use of their language, but also to preserve its ability to evolve along with society. Lynne Truss's book Eats, Shoots & Leaves is an excellent example of these two opposite ideas. Its title shows the way that punctuation can change meaning in a sentence. "Eats shoots and leaves" is a perfectly normal description of a panda's diet: he eats the shoots and leaves of bamboo trees. But the position of the comma(逗号) turns those nouns into verbs, and makes up a ridiculous little story: the panda eats (his dinner), he shoots (a gun), and he leaves (the building). It's a silly joke, but it shows how changing something as simple as a comma can change the entire meaning of a sentence.

Published in 2003, Eats, Shoots & Leaves was an unexpectedly huge success. It is easy to assume the typical reader of this kind of book as the humorless type. However, the book has sold thousands and thousands of copies—it must be appealing to a wide range of people. The book's winning secret is this: it makes some serious points about language and punctuation, but also has a light-hearted dimension, and uses stories and jokes to show its points. It has invited some tough criticism, too, especially from the US. On a broader range, Eats, Shoots & Leaves has opened up a lot of public debate on Truss's ideas. Whether they agree with her or not, punctuation and grammar has become a popular topic to discuss.

In every generation there will be people who think that the standard of language is in decline, and who are more than happy to write to the newspapers to express their concern and opinions. Truss's book also appeals to those who think that texting and blogging(博客) is lowering the standard of literacy. Whether the standard of the English language is decreasing, or simply evolving into new forms, the success of Eats, Shoots & Leaves proves that this is a subject that many English speakers find interesting and important.

63. The title of the book Eat, Shoots & Leaves is a joke which shows _____.

- A. a funny feeling B. a trend in writing
- C. a grammatical point D. a fact about animals

64. The book has been successful because _____.

- A. it presents a new research on English
- B. it solves a serious English language problem
- C. it shows the British like to teach English to other people
- D. it causes concern for proper use of language in a fun way

65. What can be inferred from the passage?

- A. The English language was better in the past.
- B. The English language is being improved by technology.
- C. There is often dissatisfaction with the standard of English.
- D. There have always been debates on the use of punctuation.

66. What is the best title for the passage?

- A. The Difference a Comma Made
- B. The Problem Punctuation Created
- C. Proper Understanding of Silly Jokes
- D. Public Debate about Language Standards

D

Role-Playing in Child Development

Playing is a key component in the learning process for virtually all of the children. There are various ways in which children play, but one of the most important is role-playing. This involves a child engaging in an activity during which he or she pretends to be another person.

Experts on child development believe that role-playing can increase the connections in children's brains that help them learn. Language skills are some of the most important aspects of learning. When children role-play, they must work out steps that need to be taken to complete a task, and create plans to act out a story. These activities enable children to develop their oral language skills. They become able to organize others and to give directions.

Children's social skills can also be developed. When engaged in group activities, children have different roles. Some are leaders while others are followers. At times, the children will disagree, so they must learn to negotiate and compromise with one another, and they must learn to apologize when they have strong arguments or disagreements as well. Children further learn about cooperation and sharing and, hopefully, begin to understand things from another person's point of view.

Besides helping children learn some kinds of skills, role-playing fosters children's imaginations and can therefore assume a number of forms. For example, boys may pretend to shave like their fathers or perform various tasks around their homes. Girls, meanwhile, often pretend to be mothers to do some daily tasks, particularly if it involves caring for young babies. Sometimes children may imagine belonging to a group of superheroes or imitate(模仿)real-life situations. They might dress up and assume different roles. Another example is the performing of stories they read in books, which is also very common when they role-play.

Another beneficial aspect of role-playing is that it can help children deal with certain actions that may cause them emotional(情感的) pain, such as the fear they face when going to school for the first time or making a visit to the doctor. If children role-play situations like these beforehand, the first that they experience when doing these actions in reality frequently lessons. For this reason, experts encourage parents to allow their children to role-play and even to take part in these activities to help their children master their fears.

Role-playing can benefit children in many ways. There is no activity for which young children are better prepared than fantasy play. Nothing is more dependable and risk-free, and the dangers are only pretend.

67. From the author's description in Paragraph 4, we learn that children often _____.

- A. involve daily-life activities in groups
- B. act out the activities that their parents do
- C. perform daily tasks instead of their parents
- D. change real-life situation when role-playing

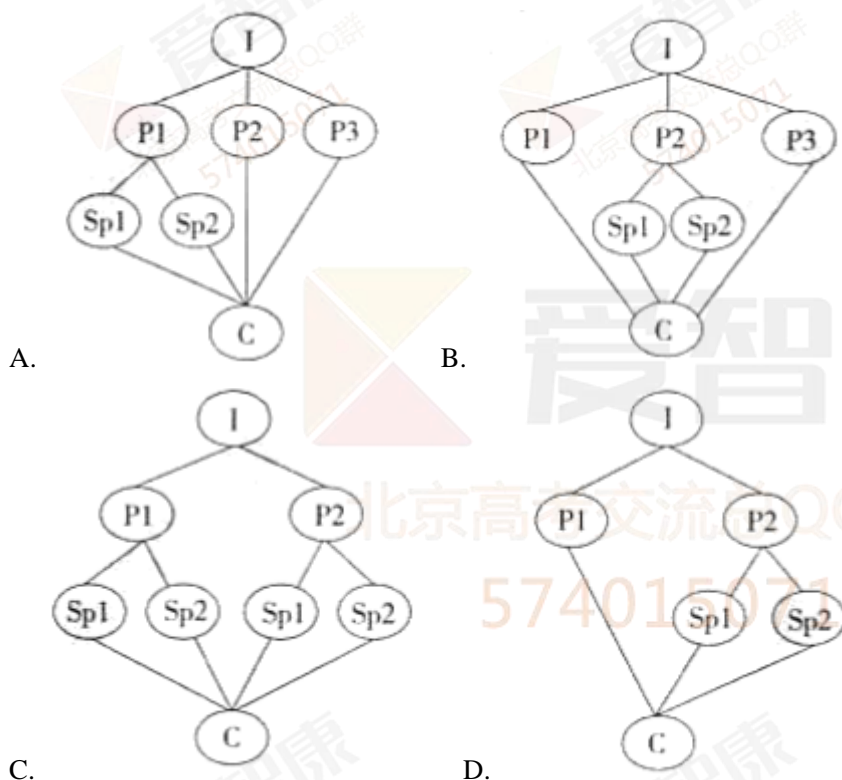

68. The author believes that role-playing may help children_____.

- A. develop a better awareness of grammar
- B. receive benefits from their emotional pain
- C. improve creativity by using their imaginations
- D. understand how to be both leaders and followers

69. The underlined word “master” in Paragraph 5 probably means _____.

- A. ignore
- B. confirm
- C. overcome
- D. predict

70. Which of the following shows the organization of the passage?

I: Introduction P: Point Sp: Sub-point (次要点) C: Conclusion

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

The Tower and the Glory

A large man jumps onto my shoulders. He is quickly followed by another slightly smaller man who catches my belt and moves up. Another follows. Then I begin to move slowly from on side to another dangerously.

A castell is a human tower built traditionally in festivals in Spain. The activity of making human towers began almost 200 years ago near Tarragona, just south of Barcelona. 71 It has become an annual event in some areas of the country. Usually it is considered a success once all castellers have climbed into their appointed places. On November 16, 2010, castells were declared to be one of the Masterpieces of the Oral and Intangible Heritage of Humanity.

72 It is a formation of several people in which two or more people support a level of higher people, who in turn may support other higher levels of people. Each person is wound into a long narrow piece of cloth worn around the waist to help other people hold tightly when they climb. Typically, the number of the people in each level is one greater than the level immediately above it, resulting in a triangular structure. 73

At first I'd like to go on top to enjoy the glory, but the club's president indicated a little girl who looked as though she had been raised on the top. It was she who had pride of place on top of the tower. For my first try-out I was given the role of second hands. Once I had assumed my position, people began to climb up me to the tower without warning. 74 My hard work must have been appreciated because I was quickly promoted to support the bottoms of the first level of the tower.

My performance in the "hands" section was obviously satisfactory. 75 I was really proud of that, since it was a clear gesture that I had been fully accepted.

- A. Building a good human tower takes team work and skills.
- B. Within seconds I assisted in the formation of a three-level tower.
- C. Each team is famous for its tallest and most complex tower of people.
- D. Once a tower is built, try and see if the group can hold it for a count of 30.
- E. Since then it's been popular, with groups competing to build higher structures.
- F. Before long I was called forward and given the great honor of the President's Belt.
- G. I hoped to change my position because I knew that this activity required particular skills.

Dear Jim,

I'm writing to invite you to the annual Campus Culture Festival to be held next Friday.

This year the festival will provide various activities. As a lover of traditional culture, I'd like to choose kite flying.

There will be pictures, poems and proverbs about kites when the time comes. We will also have the chance to learn how to make kites from folk artists. Besides, a competition for kite flying will be held. I'm sure we'll develop our awareness of traditional culture and practical ability during this activity.

If you are interested in it, please let me know. Hope to meet at the Campus Culture Festival.

Yours,

Li Hua

My Experience in the Park

Last weekend my classmates and I went to a nearby park for relaxation.

As we entered the park, we found so many tourists enjoying the beauty of spring. Some were taking photos of colorful flowers. Some were sitting comfortably in the sun chatting. When we came to an arch bridge, we noticed a grandpa struggling to push a wheelchair onto the bridge. A grandma was sitting in it. Seeing this, my classmate and I rushed forward to give them a hand. Two of us tried hard to push the wheelchair, while another classmate walked across the bridge with the grandpa. The elderly couple were very grateful and spoke highly of us. Some tourists standing nearby also praised us with their thumbs up.

We enjoyed the natural beauty of spring today, and most importantly, we were happy that we could be of help to others.
