第二节 完型填空（共第 15 小题；每小题 1 分，满分 15 分）

请阅读下面短文，从短文后各题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。

“I want to move, but I need to have a job in the new city first.” “I’ll follow my passion, as soon as I have enough money in the bank.”

Over and over I hear my clients 36 their dreams before the dreams are even fully imagined. Seemingly undefeatable road blocks destroy all hope. They have lost 37 they have even begun to play the game.

Dreams are just wishes if you do not take action. Receiving your dream life 38 with movement. Big or small doesn’t 39, as long as it is movement.

Life is like a board game. Roll the dice(骰子). Move forward. Act on 40 that come your way. Roll again. Move a few steps forward. Move a few steps 41. Not everything needs to be 42 before you get started. You only need to know which way you are 43, not the whole picture, to begin moving.

When my husband and I moved to Mexico last year, everyone thought we had taken one big step. My husband was very rooted back in Illinois. The thought of leaving was not 44 for him. Then he was provided with a job in another city. He did not take the 45 at first, but in exploring it as another choice, we knew we were both ready to make a 46.

47 we moved toward our dream even when we didn't know what the 48 would be. We took large and small risks to continue our forward movement. We said yes to our first trip to Cabo. We said yes to exploring the job in another city. Saying no to either would have blocked our dream. We supported each other 49 the unknown and celebrated the 50 opportunities which came our way.

What is your dream? What is the one little step you can take today to start you down your path?

Go to a lot of concerts? Like to write? Work for us!

MiamiRex Magazine is Miami’s best publication for music enthusiasts. From Denton to Dennison, Lubbock to Laredo, we’re there to bring you the scoop(独家新闻). Whatever your tastes---classical, jazz, rock, opera—if it’s being played in Miami, we make it our business to know about it.

Send us a concert review. If we like it we’ll publish it in our magazine. If we really like it, you might get a regular spot in the magazine! The only thing we ask for is passion, mixed with a little creativity. Tell us how you really feel! Share it with us and maybe we’ll share it with everyone else!

Please mail all reviews to:

Monica Baker
P. O. Box 2723

Dear Mr. Baker,

Please find below, my impression of the Soundproof Swing concert last Sunday.

I’ve been to a half dozen Soundproof Swing shows in the last few years, but this performance at the Alice Motorplex was the most fascinating I have ever seen. It seemed an old place for a jazz concert, but it was full of energy. I have never seen them so chatty with the crowd! If they were trying to build up harmony, it worked. The audience ate up every note, chord(和弦), word, and stanza. The atmosphere was simple electric, and the open air was a surprisingly fine compliment(恭敬) to the music, played masterfully as always. A good time was had by all! Check their website(www. Spswing.com) for the next tour stop!

Thanks for the opportunity! Love your magazine!

Paul Avila

Do you think telling lies, whether a little or a lot, isn’t that big of a deal? Well, that depends on the situation. If someone asks, “Does this dress make me look fat?” we might all lie somewhat. We might say, “Of course not. You look great.” Lying to spare someone’s feelings is one thing. Lying to destroy someone’s character or fame is another.

“What’s really terrible is that you can’t undo a big lie,” says a minister we’ll call Morgan. “I promise if you go house to house to say, ‘I feel terrible I wrongly accused my neighbor of stealing,’ the lie will spread like a fire fueled by gasoline. You can’t call back a lie very easily.”

Morgan goes on to say that lies have hurt people more than guns.

“We have a grandfather in our church whose former son-in-law told people the man treated his own children cruelly,” Morgan says. “To this day, we don’t know whether it is true or not. I would tend to doubt it, but I can’t take a chance, especially if he is working with young people in our church.”

Disarming someone who lies is tough. It’s like disarming someone who’s prepared to fire.

That's why our society is full of people who are forced to cover up the lies of other people.

"I worked with a man who was stealing money from our employer," says a man we'll call Fred. "He was so good at lying and doctoring the books (做假账) that it would have taken an FBI agent to stop him. I worried, 'If I turned him in, and he got out of the trouble, my career at our company would come to an end.'"

Fred says he came up with a plan to drop hints (暗示) to the company owner. "I found printed materials on monitoring possibly dishonest employees. I started mailing them to the company owner without leaving my name. Then one day, over lunch, I told my boss he should have the books checked carefully. He got the hint."

Fred told us that when the books were checked, the dishonest co-worker tried to blame him for the errors. However, Fred told the company owner he had been dropping hints for some time. The boss got the picture. Fred kept his job. The dishonest guy was fired.

Figuring out how to make a liar public takes work. It can be done, but you might have to move at the pace of a turtle. The slower you move, the more control you will have. You have to give others time to take in the truth.

53. The underlined phrase "spare someone's feelings" in Paragraph 1 can be replaced by

- A. destroy someone's feelings
 - B. avoid hurting someone
 - C. put someone in a bad mood
 - D. express someone's ideas

54. Which of the following can be used to conclude Paragraph 2?

- A. It's no use crying over spilt milk.
- B. Every man has his faults.
- C. There is no smoke without fire.
- D. Pride goes before a fall.

55. How does the author develop this passage?

- A. By listing numbers.
- B. By making comparisons.
- C. By giving examples.
- D. By following order of time.

56. What can we know from the passage?

- A. It was true that the grandfather treated his own children cruelly.
- B. It is not difficult to persuade a dishonest man into telling the truth.
- C. Fred's boss believed the dishonest employee's words and fired Fred.
- D. To make a liar public, we should figure out effective ways in advance.

C

Scientists say they have discovered a possible cure for all five known Ebola viruses. Antibodies (抗体) that are used in the cure were discovered in the blood of a survivor.

Kartik Chandran of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine helped discover the antibodies. They are described online in the journal Cell. Chandran says studies of the antibody in non-human primates (非灵长类动物) have shown positive results. He says he is optimistic that the antibodies can be used to protect and treat people, too.

he virus was given the name Ebola because the first recorded outbreak of the disease took place along the Ebola River in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) — then known as Zaire — in 1976.

Since then, there have been about 24 Ebola outbreaks in Africa, including one happening now in the DRC. Nine people have been infected and three people have died. The most recent Ebola epidemic took place from 2013 to 2016. It killed more than 11,000 people and infected 29,000 in Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone.

During that epidemic, researchers were studying an anti-Ebola drug called Zmapp. Doctors began using it even before the study was complete. Zmapp uses antibodies discovered in mice. They use the body's natural immune system to fight infection. If the drug is given within five days after Ebola infection symptoms appear, it can cure the disease.

Promising results

But researcher Kartik Chandran says Zmapp is effective only against Ebola Zaire. It does not fight the other four known Ebola viruses.

Chandran says the recently discovered human antibodies attack and destroy all five of the viruses. Researchers say the antibodies work by interfering with a process that the disease uses to infect and multiply inside cells. Chandran says scientists discovered the antibodies in just six months.

The drug company Mapp Pharmaceutical Incorporated is now testing the antibodies in monkeys that have been exposed to Ebola. Spokespeople for the company say the antibodies have so far been safe and effective.

Chandran says he hopes the antibodies can also be tested in people soon. And, he says, he hopes they can finally be used both as a treatment and as a vaccine (疫苗) to prevent people from getting Ebola in the first place.

57. Where should the subtitle “A challenging history” be placed?

- A. Between paragraphs 1 and 2.
- B. Between paragraphs 2 and 3.
- C. Between paragraphs 3 and 4.
- D. Between paragraphs 4 and 5.

58. What do we know about Zmapp?

- A. The study about it was a failure.
- B. It mainly uses human antibodies.
- C. Its medical function is limited.
- D. It is only effective for five days.

59. Which of the following is true?

- A. Ebola virus can multiply inside cells.
- B. DRC suffers most from Ebola virus.
- C. Ebola virus poses no threat to monkeys.
- D. Human antibody relies on body's immune system.

60. What is the best title of the passage?

- A. It's time for Ebola Virus to disappear
- B. Scientists discover cure for Ebola Virus

- C. Zmapp loses advantage in fighting Ebola
- D. A drug company contributes to fighting Ebola

D

Next morning, there was no wind and we were half a mile from the eastern coast of the island. Although the sun shone bright and hot, I hated the thought of Treasure Island, afraid of what would happen there.

Guns were given to all the honest men. Hunter, Joyce, and Redruth were told what was happening, and were less surprised than we expected them to be. Then the captain went on deck to talk to the crew.

They all became happier at once. I think they thought they would find the treasure lying around on the beach! After some talk, six men stayed on board, and the others, with Silver, got into the small boats.

I then had the first of the mad ideas that helped to save our lives. If six men were left, we could not take control of the ship; and because only six were left, the captain's men did not need my help. So I quickly went over the ship's side and into the nearest boat.

No one took much notice of me, only one man saying, "Is that you, Jim?" But Silver called from the other boat, wanting to know if it was me. Then I began to worry if I had done the right thing.

The crews rowed to the beach and our boat arrived first. I ran towards the trees. Silver and the rest were a hundred metres behind, and I heard him shouting, "Jim, Jim!" But I took no notice, pushing through trees and bushes, and ran until I could run no longer.

I was pleased to lose Long John and began to enjoy looking around this strange island. I crossed wet ground and came to a long, open piece of sand, then went on to a place where the trees had branches that were thick and close to the sand.

Just then I heard distant voices, Silver's among them, and hid behind a tree. Through the leaves, I saw Long John Silver and another of the crew talking together.

"I'm warning you because I'm your friend, Tom," Silver was saying.

"Silver," said Tom: "You're old and you're honest, or so men say; and you've money, too, which lots of poor seamen haven't. And you're brave. Why let yourself be led away with that kind of scoundrel? I'd rather die than—"

Suddenly, there was a noise of distant shouting, then a long horrible scream. I had found one honest man here, and that terrible, distant scream told me of another.

"John!" said Tom: "What was that?"

"That?" replied Silver. His eyes shone like pieces of broken glass in the sun: "That'll be Alan."

"Alan!" cried poor Tom: "An honest and true seaman! John Silver, you've been a friend of mine, but for no longer. You've killed Alan, have you? Then kill me, too, if you can!"

The brave man turned his back on Silver and began to walk back to the beach. With a shout, Silver threw his crutch through the air. It hit poor Tom between the shoulders, and he fell to the ground with a cry.

61. Why did all the men become excited when they got close to the island?
- A. The weather was turning rather hot.
 - B. They could get help on the island.
 - C. They could go hunting with the guns.
 - D. Hidden treasures would be uncovered.
62. Jim decided to go into the small boat because _____.
- A. he would rather stay with Silver together
 - B. the captain and his men didn't like him
 - C. he sensed danger and decided to escape
 - D. he knew where the treasure was lying
63. How many persons at least did Silver kill on the island?
- A. One. B. Two. C. Four. D. Six.
64. From the passage we can know that _____.
- A. Jim was happy to be on the island
 - B. Silver treated Tom as a true friend
 - C. Silver got along well with the men
 - D. Jim witnessed one of Silver's murders
65. What kind of person is Silver indeed?
- A. Honest and brave. B. Calm and experienced.
 - C. Tricky and cruel. D. Generous and friendly.

第二卷 非选择题（满分 40 分）

第四部分：任务型阅读（共 10 小题，每小题 1 分，满分 10 分）

请阅读下面短文，并根据所读内容在文章后表格中的空格里填入一个最恰当的单词。

When hiring a new employee, the resume (简历) becomes a valuable tool. Not only does the resume help to create a picture of the potential employee, it also provides information to explain any questions about the resume. Therefore it is essential for an employer to learn to read a resume.

Firstly, the cover of the resume should be judged carefully. An applicant has enough time to create, review and edit his or her resume before presenting it and therefore he or she should create a resume that is both filled with relevant content and aesthetically (美学观点上) pleasing. If the applicant doesn't dedicate time to designing a resume well, will he or she take the time to complete the responsibilities assigned to him or her? Therefore, during the first review, an employer should spend about ten seconds looking at the resume, checking that the cover sheet is addressed to the correct company and the objective matches the job description. The second review involves deeper analysis. But at this point, several applicants should be wiped out.

Secondly, don't overlook those who are young. Many companies are hesitant to hire employees that are coming straight out of college because they don't have experience. Actually, while recent graduates may have no work experience, they can be very knowledgeable and up-to-date on trends in the field. Younger employees tend to be valuable in a world that relies more and more on technology and social media. Furthermore, many students have had internships (实习) or conducted research with their professors. Even studying abroad can prove valuable as small businesses are realizing the importance of the global market. For example, experiences abroad can be useful for marketing in foreign countries.

Thirdly, don't be hesitant to hire older employees. Some companies fear that older, more experienced employees are going to ask for higher salaries or are going to fail to know about technology. This is probably true in some cases, but definitely not in all. Older applicants may not have grown up with cell phones but that does not imply they are not capable of mastering modern technology. Many applicants will already be fluent "speakers" of technology or can be easily trained.

Lastly, references (推荐人) can provide information about an applicant's personality and job history and, therefore, should be taken advantage of by anyone reviewing a resume. Can the references be contacted? Is the number out of service and the e-mail address non-existent? Do not hesitate to ask former bosses why their former employees were fired. References have known the applicant for much longer than an interviewer has.

Dear editor,

I'm writing to tell you about the discussion we've recently had about whether it is necessary for Toby to have an adventure travelling in Africa. We do have different opinions on this matter.

Some students are in favor of it. With the adventure traveling, they will have more chances to meet completely different people and experience totally different cultures. Their horizons will be broadened, and their knowledge will be enriched. Most importantly, placing themselves in situations where things don't always go as planned, adventure makes it possible for them to learn to deal with the uncertainties and meet the challenges, thus helping build their confidence.

However, others argue that adventure is nothing but a waste of time and money. The peace of nature and the animals living in the wild will be disturbed, causing awfully much damage to the environment. Worse still, it can sometimes be dangerous, costing people their precious lives.

Personally, adventure travelling does good not only to our health but also to our mind. Only if we make sure those advantages outweigh the disadvantages can we truly benefit from it. (150 words)

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

Text 1

M: Mom, I do think we need one more TV. Lisa has occupied the TV all day long.

W: Be a man, son. Should a college graduate fight with his eight-year-old sister over TV channels? (1)

Text 2

M: I can't believe it, Ashley. This may look like Paris, but we're in Blackpool, (2) a town in northwest England. It's only an hour's drive from Manchester.

W: Yes, that's right. I love the beach, the sunshine, and the fish and chips here.

Text 3

W: How boring to spend Saturday evening at home! Let's go to the movies.

M: That's exactly what I was thinking. (3) Let me get the paper and see what's playing tonight.

Text 4

M: Have you seen the weather report, Jessica? I hope it won't be terrible.

cold front: 冷锋

A cold front is moving in from the north.

一股冷空气前锋正从北方向这里移动。

W: Yes. The weatherman said a cold front has developed and is heading toward us. It will bring strong winds, which will clear the skies tomorrow morning. (4)

Text 5

M: I think you'd better find another partner. I love tennis, but I don't think I'm improving.

W: Look, Paul. It's still too early to give up. Nobody expects you to be a superstar. Just keep going and you will make progress. (5)

Text 6

M: Let's just go over the plans for my trip to Bombay.

W: Sure, here's your schedule. Your flight is at 9:50 on Monday evening. You have to check in two hours before that, so I've ordered a car to pick you up from the office at 6:50. (6)

M: Good. (6) And what time does the flight arrive in Bombay?

泰姬陵酒店 (Taj Hotels, Resorts & Palaces)

是印度的豪华系列酒店, 创办于 1903 年, 现

今旗下的酒店不但在印度多数城邦都有开张,

且已经扩展到美国、英国、澳大利亚等国。

W: At 11:30. I've booked you a room at Taj Hotel.

M: Fine. And has the tour of the new factory been planned for Wednesday? (7)

W: Yes, (7) they'll pick you up at 9:00 a.m. and take you back to the hotel at about 5:00 p.m.

Text 7

M: Excuse me. I want to book four seats for the three-day bus tour to San Francisco.

W: All right. The price is $75 per person.

M: Does that include meals?

W: No, it covers all hotels and the bus fee. (8) But it doesn't include tips for the guide, either.

But if more than five people join the tour, we will give you a 10% discount(折扣). (9)

M: Unfortunately, we only have four people.

Text 8 (第 10 题为推断题)

W: We're going to do something different for Thanksgiving this year. Instead of going to mom's house, we've decided to all go out to dinner.

M: Oh, okay. I like having a home-cooked meal, though, and we go to mom's every year. Why did you both decide to go to a restaurant? (12)

W: Mom says that she's tired of cooking everything.

M: Well, we can go over and help her out. Or we can just have it at my house instead. My kids would love to help cook for their grandma. (11)

W: You can talk to her yourself, then. She seems to have made up her mind to go to a restaurant this year. (12)

M: Okay, I'll give her a call. Have you talked to dad, yet? (12)

W: No, but I think he wants to go out, too. (12)

Text 9

M: Ivy, how do you like your new apartment?

W: Well, I wish I hadn't moved in. The man who lives upstairs often plays the piano until midnight. I really can't stand it. (13)

M: Why don't you ask him to stop?

W: I've tried, but it doesn't work. What's worse, he isn't the only one that I cannot stand. The woman who lives next door often comes over to borrow things, but she never returns anything.

M: Then don't lend her anything!

W: Now I don't even open the door when she knocks. I'm afraid I'll have to move again. (15)

M: You can move in with my sister Susan. The girl who was sharing her apartment, Jennifer, has moved out, (14) so she has an extra room now.

W: That's great. Your sister is such a great girl. (16) I'll call her and move in with her as soon as possible. (15) After all, I need to sleep well every night in order to do well on the coming exams.

Text 10

Good evening, this is Ben Williams with the 7 o'clock weather report. We've been experiencing some light rainstorms this past week, but they're about to get stronger tonight. Expect thunder, lightning, and high winds, with temperatures in the low fifties. The storm will hopefully end by Wednesday night. (17) We should wake up to blue skies on Thursday morning, and if all goes well, the weather will be clear for the holiday weekend. The storm on Thanksgiving was certainly enough to frighten everyone into staying inside, but we should be free of bad weather for Christmas. Friday will bring temperatures in the low seventies, and we should see the high seventies in most areas on Saturday, (18) which is Christmas day. (19) The weather should stay nice right on into New Year's. Please be safe out there on New Year's Eve. Drive carefully and try to avoid driving after midnight. (20) There will be police all over town, so don't even think about drinking and driving. That's all for the weather report. Goodnight.
